There's a hidden danger spot in most homes today. Chances are you don't look at it or even think about it. It's the venting from your clothes dryer. Over time, it fills with lint that sneaks by your dryer's filter. Overheating comes next as the lint builds up. Now you're just a step away from a duct fire. Sound far-fetched? Here are some sobering facts:

- The Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that over 15,000 clothes dryer related fires occur each year.
- In 1996, the result was 20 deaths, 320 injuries and over $84 million in property damage, according to the commission.
- The CPSC reports that the most frequent starting point for these fires was the dryer vent area. The typical scenario is simple. The dryer overheats, the lint catches fire and the fire is then helped by combustibles in the immediate vicinity (these fires can smolder for hours going unnoticed until after you've gone to bed or left your house for an errand).

Fortunately, removing this danger from your home is neither complicated, nor expensive. And there are some nice extra benefits as well. Removing this lint, for example, results in a dryer that runs cheaper, since it uses less energy to get your clothes dry. Drying times can even be shorter, getting you out of the laundry room faster. Finally, the dryer itself can last longer since it's not stressed by the higher operating temperatures caused by the lint buildup.

How we eradicate your home's dryer vent lint problem safely and effectively.

The heart of our lint eradication program is our RoVac™ System, the most advanced equipment of its type. Using a combination of suction and rotating brushes, that dangerous lint is removed safely and effectively, both in the ducting system and in the dryer itself. At the end of the process the dryer is tested thoroughly for proper air flow. We finish up by providing you with an evaluation of your system in writing, highlighting the details of your system, its overall design and condition, as well as recommending future servicing or cleaning needs.

We guarantee you will be well satisfied and that your premises will be as tidy as when we arrived (and your venting a lot more tidy!)

Our charge for this service is surprisingly reasonable, often paying for itself in lower service and utility costs. Why not call us today?
